Caring For Your Spa Cover

Here are some tips to get the most out of your new spa cover purchase.

- Keep the cover clean. The vinyl needs to stay clean and conditioned. Use a mild detergent and water solution to clean the vinyl portion of the cover at least twice per month.

- Use a moisturizing product, such as 303 Protectant, at least once every three months. Do not use any product with silicone in it which tends to draw the moisture out of the vinyl, leaving it susceptible to cracking.

- Wipe chemical residue from the underside of the cover every chance you get. These residues, if left on the cover, start to break down the material causing it to become porous. Water vapor begins to penetrate the EPS core when its protective layers become too porous.

- Maintain proper spa water chemistry. Failing to maintain proper water chemistry may void your warranty.

- Unzip the cover and clean just inside the zipper at least twice per year. Mildew tends to build up here and if you have not kept your sanitizer levels up you may develop this as a problem. Use a weak ammonia and water solution.

One of the best ways to protect your hot tub cover from the elements is to buy a Cover Cap.

- Easy to install and maintain; cover caps are comprised of durable, interwoven fabric that can stand the test of time and the elements. Their elastic ends make the installation and removal process a breeze.

- Most cover caps also come with 12” long skirts that are used to drape over the sides of the hot tub cabinet walls.

- They can be used for year-round protection; When left exposed to sunlight for prolonged periods of time, fading and increased wear and tear will occur.
